Incoming President: Paul Snyder

An active member of the Friends of Michigan Libraries since 2009 Paul Snyder has served on various committees and was elected Vice-President at the 2012 Annual Membership Meeting. He is currently a Project Archivist at the Burton Historical Collection located in Detroit Public Library's main branch. Snyder earned his Masters of Library and Information Science Degree and a Graduate Certificate in Archival Administration from Wayne State University. He was awarded his Bachelors of Business Administration degree from Northwood University as he finished his 30-year career at Ford Motor Company in 2003. Snyder was elected to the Board of Trustees of the Northville District Library in 2010. His other affiliations include the Michigan Library Association, the Michigan Archival Association, and the Society of American Archivists. An avid reader, Snyder joined the Between the Lines book club at the Northville District Library (NDL) soon after he moved to Northville with his wife and stepson in 2004. He joined the NDL Friends group and became its President in 2008. Although resigning his Friends Board position after being elected to serve as a NDL Trustee, he continues to work as a volunteer with the Friends in their Used Book activity and delivers books to patrons who cannot visit the Library due to mobility issues.

Message from the FOML President: Geek for Friends

Charles D. Hanson
Library Director, Kettering University

We've all heard about "computer geeks," those enthusiastic folks who seem to know everything about computers and who spend hours devoted to computer use. Now there's a new use for "geek," part of a national campaign to increase awareness of the value of public libraries. The website (www.get.geekthelibrary.org) describes the campaign as follows:

"Geek the Library is a community awareness campaign designed to highlight the vital role of public libraries and educate the public about the critical funding issues many libraries face."

*Charles Hanson,

As FOML President my commitment to "geek the library" is directed to Friends of the Library.

As I prepare to turn over the FOML President's role to Paul Snyder at the FOML annual membership meeting in April, I plan to continue my commitment to Michigan Friends and to the FOML organization. I enjoy being known as someone who is a "Friends of the Library Geek." Thank you to all Michigan library supporters and Friends who have helped shape the Friends of Michigan Libraries during the years of my presidency. It has been my honor to work for such great Friends! (and I will continue to "geek Friends of the Library")

Library Advocate's Handbook

"Isn't Amazon.com going to put public libraries out of business?"

"Why do school libraries need money for books when everything is online?"

"Why do we need a campus library when students can do their research on the Internet?"

Technology has vastly changed the way most of us access information, and it has greatly enhanced library and information services. It has also raised some unsettling questions.

Library advocates have a critical role to play in answering these questions. In schools, on campuses, in neighborhoods, and on Capitol Hill, library advocates are the voice of America's libraries.

The American Library Association's advocacy trainings, including the Advocacy Institutes, are designed to support librarians, library staff, and library advocates in delivering the library message to legislators; the media; and campus, community and school officials who shape public opinion and control support for library services.

The Library Advocate's Handbook covers basic techniques that work, whether you are seeking an increase in funding, campaigning for a new building or dealing with controversy on social networking or the USA PATRIOT Act.

Used in conjunction with training at state, regional and national library conferences, the Library Advocate's Handbook has reached thousands of library advocates, enabling them to increase public awareness and support for library services. But our efforts are far from over. In the information age, library advocates continue to have a crucial role to play in educating our communities about why libraries and librarians are essential in an information society. To be effective, they must speak loudly, clearly and with a unified voice. Democracy needs libraries. And libraries need advocates.

Friends Activities From Around the State

Linda Sickles

- Friends of the Sterling Heights held a raffle during December. If one purchased $2 or more in their used book store, they were entered into a raffle for a $25 Target gift card. A drawing was held weekly for four weeks.
- Jackson District Library Friends celebrated the holidays with a Friends Holiday Dessert Tea in December, including music and a presentation of the Friend of the Year Award. It was a chance for all the branch Friends to network and talk about their activities.
- Friends of the Rawson Memorial District Library are hosting a trip March 3rd to see the musical, “Hair”, in Detroit and held a holiday sing-a-long in December.
- Friends of the Flint Public Library participated in the Flint Cultural Center Holiday Walk, providing programs and refreshments at the library.
- The Helena Township Friends of the Library presented a film series, “Off the Wall during 2011-12, complete with themed meals. In February, they are hosting a program on Papua, New Guinea.
- Friends of the Robert J. Parks Library just published their first quarterly newsletter — Congratulations! They are selling used books through Amazon.com Market Place and doing quite well.
- Friends of the Hope Borbas Okemos Public Library are actively involved in a large fundraising effort — “Renew the Okemos Library-It’s Overdue” — for the renovation of the library. They are planning to raise $100,000 for that purpose. In November they sponsored the 41st Annual Friends Show and Art Sale and in 2013 a Friends Winter Film Festival. In each newsletter, they give a “Tip of the Hat” to Friends members who have given outstanding service.
- Friends of the Lewiston Public Library held their Ninth Annual Holiday Gala with appetizers, cash bar and sit down dinner with a drawing for a pontoon boat ride and a silent auction as well as a basket raffle.
- The St. Clair Shores Friends of the Library are sponsoring a poetry workshop in addition to a Family Movie Matinee Series as well as a book discussion group. They purchased two early literacy computers and give financial support for the library newsletter.
- Friends of the Otsego County Library provide volunteers to deliver library materials to the homebound and partnered with Zonta to provide book bags to new mothers.
- Friends of the Dearborn Public Library are hosting a free film series in January and February and a program, “The Civil War and Underground Connection” in February.

It is truly amazing how creative our Friends groups are when it comes to raising money for their libraries and promoting the great things libraries do by funding programs, events and newsletters. Friends enrich libraries and we owe these loyal volunteers kudos for their dedication. If you have news of activities from your friends group, please let FOML know and we can spread the word to other groups who may be inspired by your efforts.

It's unfortunate we don't have space to include all the wonderful pictures of the transformed children's room at the St. Clair Library, with its ceiling to floor murals and three dimensional art. It was a collaboration of the Friends of the Library, the Public Art Committee of the St. Clair Art Association, as well as some private donations and a variety of local artists. A real inspiration for us all!

Michigan Library Cooperative News

Roger Mendel, Director

Northland Library Cooperative

On February 15 the Michigan Cooperative Directors Association met for one of the bimonthly meetings at the Library of Michigan in Lansing. The eleven cooperatives in the Michigan were all represented at the meeting which is chaired by Jim Pletz, Director of The Library Network. The eleven cooperatives represent every geographical area of the State and provide support services for public libraries primarily with some providing services for area school libraries, academic and special libraries.

At the February meeting the directors met with Gail Madziar, the new Executive Director of the Michigan Library Association. Among the many topics discussed high on the agenda was the topic of Advocacy. With economic situations in many libraries becoming dire the cooperative directors are working with MLA to be sure that libraries are not "shortchanged" in regard to the issues surrounding the Personal Property Tax reform and tax capture issues. Also in keeping with providing for excellent continuing education offerings for libraries Cooperative Directors Association and MCLS are sponsoring a Management Institute on March 7 and 8 at the Holiday Inn in Flint. It is expected that over 100 will be attending the Institute. This is the first of many collaborations with MCLS to bring quality instruction to library staff. The Cooperatives continue to assist their member libraries with special discounts for materials and media and assist members in keeping updated on state issues related to libraries. Friends groups may wish to schedule a program with the cooperative their library is affiliated with and get a firsthand account of what services are available to their library by the Cooperative.
